

General information about benefits

If you have Parkinson's, or care for someone who does, you might be worried about how you'll manage financially. If you can't work or if you need help with your day-to-day needs, this can lead to extra costs. There is some financial support available, so it's important to find out what benefits you're entitled to.

This information gives an overview of some of the financial support available for people affected by Parkinson's.

The information in this publication is correct as of June 2021, but is subject to change. Our most up-to-date information is on our website at parkinsons.org.uk/benefits. Our helpline can also give advice on benefits. Call 0808 800 0303 or email hello@parkinsons.org.uk

How does the benefits system work?

The benefits system in the UK is there to support people when they retire, if they're unable to work, or if they have a low income.

While we're working, we pay National Insurance contributions so that when we retire, or if we're unable to work, we receive benefits that we've paid for. These are the 'contributory benefits', such as State Pension and contributory Employment and Support Allowance.

Sometimes however, these benefits aren't enough to live on. Or you might not have paid enough National Insurance contributions to get the full amount. In this case, 'means-tested benefits', such as Pension Credit or Universal Credit, provide a safety net, to top up your income so you have enough to live on. Whether you're eligible and how much you get will depend on what income and savings you already have.

There are also benefits for people who are ill or disabled, and for those who care for someone who is. These benefits aren't based on National Insurance contributions and are not normally affected by any other income you have. They include Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Carer's Allowance.

This information explains what you're entitled to. You can call our helpline on 0808 800 0303 for more advice.

You can also use the online benefits calculator at www.turn2us.org.uk/get-support to check what you can claim.

What benefits are there for people with a disability?

Attendance Allowance

If you've reached State Pension age, have an illness or disability and you need help with personal care or your safety, you may be able to claim Attendance Allowance.

You don't need to have someone caring for or supporting you to qualify. Attendance Allowance is based on what help you need – not on the help you actually get.

It's not based on National Insurance contributions and it's not affected by any income or savings you might have. It can be paid in addition to most other social security benefits. It can sometimes increase the amount of any means-tested benefits you get.

Attendance Allowance is paid to the person who needs care or supervision, not to a carer.

Find out more: see our information on Attendance Allowance.

Personal Independence Payment

If you need extra help with day-to-day activities or have trouble getting around due to your health or disability, you may be able to claim Personal Independence Payment (PIP).

New PIP claims must be made before you reach State Pension age.

PIP is not taxable. It's not based on National Insurance contributions and it's not affected by any income or savings you might have. PIP can be paid in addition to most other social security benefits. It can sometimes increase the amount of any means-tested benefits you get.

PIP has two parts:

- a daily living component – for help with everyday life
- a mobility component – for help getting around

You can be paid either component separately or receive both at the same time.

Each component is paid at two different levels, a 'standard rate' and an 'enhanced rate', depending on your score in the points-related assessment.

Find out more: see our information on Personal Independence Payment.

Disability Living Allowance

It's no longer possible for people aged between 16 and State Pension age to make a new claim for Disability Living Allowance. Instead, you'll need to make a claim for Personal Independence Payment (PIP).

Disability Living Allowance will continue to be available to new claimants under 16. If you're State Pension age or over and have care or supervision needs, you should consider claiming Attendance Allowance instead.

If you currently receive Disability Living Allowance as an adult, you might be reassessed at some point and transfer to PIP. You'll not be reassessed if you were aged 65 or over by 8 April 2013 (or by 20 June 2016 in Northern Ireland).

What benefits are there for carers?

Carer's Allowance

Carer's Allowance is for people who regularly spend 35 hours a week or more caring for someone who gets a 'qualifying benefit' (these are Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment daily living component or Disability Living Allowance care component, at either the middle or highest rate). You don't have to be related to the person you're caring for or be living with them.

You can still qualify for Carer's Allowance even if you've never been employed or paid National Insurance contributions.

Carer's Allowance isn't means-tested, which means it isn't affected by your savings, but there is an earnings limit and Carer's Allowance is taxable.

Find out more: see our information on Carer's Allowance.

Carer's Credit

This is aimed at protecting the State Pension rights of people who are not able to pay National Insurance contributions, are not entitled to Carer's Allowance, and are looking after an ill or disabled person.

To claim, call 0800 731 0297 or visit www.gov.uk/carers-credit/how-to-claim

What benefits are there for working-age people?

Statutory Sick Pay

Statutory Sick Pay is for people under pension age who are still employed but are unable to work because of ill health. It's paid by your employer for the first 28 weeks of any period of sickness lasting for four or more days. This waiting period doesn't apply for anyone who is sick due to Covid-19 or self-isolating, as you are deemed 'incapable of work'.

To qualify for Statutory Sick Pay you must be employed to work full-time or part-time and earn at least £128 a week.

To claim, you must notify your employer that you are off sick. After seven days of sickness you'll need to give them a 'fit note' (previously known as a doctor's certificate or sick note).

Your employer may pay extra sick pay on top of Statutory Sick Pay. If your income is low, you may be able to top up your Statutory Sick Pay with Universal Credit or Pension Credit.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Jobseeker's Allowance is a benefit for people of working age who are out of work (or work fewer than 16 hours a week) and looking for work. There are two forms of Jobseeker's Allowance.

You might be able to claim contribution-based (new-style) Jobseeker's Allowance if you've paid enough National Insurance contributions in specific tax years. It can be paid for up to six months, either in one period, or several shorter periods.

Income-based Jobseeker's Allowance is a means-tested benefit that is being phased out and replaced by Universal Credit. See 'Legacy benefits' below.

Employment and Support Allowance

Employment and Support Allowance (ESA) is a benefit paid if your ability to work is limited by ill health or disability.

You will have a 'Work Capability Assessment' to determine your eligibility for ESA, and whether any time limit is applied.

Find out more: see our information on Employment and Support Allowance.

Universal Credit

Universal Credit is a new means-tested benefit for people of working age. It is replacing six existing benefits with a single payment for those who are out of work or on a low income.

Universal Credit is made up of a standard allowance with extra amounts added to cover different needs, for example, if your ability to work is limited by a health condition or disability such as Parkinson's, or if you have substantial caring responsibilities.

Find out more: see our information on Universal Credit.

'Legacy' benefits

Universal Credit is replacing six existing means-tested benefits for working age people. These are now known as 'legacy' benefits. It's no longer possible to make new claims for these legacy benefits.

- Income-based Jobseeker's Allowance is for people with a low income and no more than £16,000 in savings. It's intended for people of working age who are out of work (or work fewer than 16 hours a week) but who are seeking work.
- Income-related Employment and Support Allowance is the means-tested part of Employment and Support Allowance (see previous section), a benefit paid if your ability to work is limited by ill health or disability.
- Working Tax Credit and Child Tax Credit. Working Tax Credit is a payment to top up the earnings of working people on low incomes, whether they are employed or self-employed. Child Tax Credit is a payment for people, working or not, who are responsible for children.

- Working-age Housing Benefit helps people pay their rent. Housing Benefit for people over pension age will not be affected by Universal Credit.
- Income Support is a means-tested benefit paid to some people who can't work. This includes carers and single parents with very young children.

Incapacity Benefit

You can no longer make claims for Incapacity Benefit. It was replaced by contributory Employment and Support Allowance in 2008.

If you're already receiving it, you may continue to get it for the time being. At some stage, you might be reassessed under the Work Capability Assessment. If you're found eligible, you'll be moved on to either Employment and Support Allowance or Universal Credit.

Severe Disablement Allowance

Severe Disablement Allowance ended in 2001. If you're already receiving it, you might continue to for the time being. At some stage, you may be reassessed under the Work Capability Assessment. If you're found eligible, you'll be moved on to either Employment and Support Allowance or Universal Credit.

What benefits are there for people over pension age?

State Pension

You can claim State Pension if you're over pension age.

To get a full State Pension, you must satisfy the National Insurance contribution conditions. If you do not draw your State Pension at pension age, you might get extra State Pension or a one-off taxable lump sum payment when you do start to claim. State Pension is taxable, but neither your income nor savings affect the amount you get.

Normally, the Pension Service contacts you with details about claiming your pension about four months before you reach pension age. If this doesn't happen, call the Pension Service on 0800 731 7898 (textphone 0800 731 7339) or if you live in Northern Ireland, call 0808 100 2658 (textphone 0808 100 2198).

Pension Credit

Pension Credit is a means-tested benefit for people who have reached the qualifying age. Pension Credit can top up your State Pension if you've reached pension age and have a low income.

Find out more: see our information on Pension Credit.

Housing Benefit

This is a benefit to help people on a low income with paying rent. It might be available if you have savings of no more than £16,000 and a low income, or if you receive the Guarantee Credit part of Pension Credit.

Only those under pension age and living in temporary or supported accommodation can now make new claims.

If you have an existing claim and you're below pension age, you'll stay on Housing Benefit until you're transferred across to Universal Credit. You'll also remain on Housing Benefit if you have an existing claim and you receive Pension Credit. And if you live in supported or temporary accommodation, you can claim Housing Benefit no matter what age you are.

Grants, loans and other support

Various grants may be available to help with certain one-off or occasional expenses for people on a low income. These include:

Disabled Facilities Grants

You could get a grant from your council if you're disabled and need to make changes to your home, for example to:

- widen doors and install ramps
- improve access to rooms and facilities - for example, adding stairlifts or a downstairs bathroom
- provide a heating system suitable for your needs
- adapt heating or lighting controls

Funeral Expenses Payment

You can get a grant or an interest-free loan (depending on the estate of the person who has died) to help with the costs of a funeral.

To get a Funeral Expenses Payment, you or your partner must be getting one of the means-tested benefits. You must claim within six months of the funeral and be 'eligible to be treated by the Department for Work and Pensions as responsible for the costs of the funeral'. You will usually be seen as eligible if you are the partner or parent of the deceased, or a close relative or close friend. The grant will cover the funeral expenses up to £1,000 plus costs of purchasing a plot or cremation fees, hearse and some travel costs.

Since September 2019, the Funeral Support Payment has replaced the expenses payment in Scotland.

Cold Weather Payment

If you're entitled to certain means-tested benefits then a Cold Weather Payment of £25 will be allowed for each period of cold weather. This means a period of seven consecutive days where the average temperature is 0°C or below.

You don't need to claim for this payment as it's paid automatically.

Winter Fuel Payment

You will normally automatically get an annual Winter Fuel Payment if you're over pension age.

Some people may need to make a claim if they have not had a Winter Fuel Payment before.

You'll get:

- £200 if you're aged over pension age – up to 79
- £300 if you're aged 80 or over

Only one payment is made for each household. The payment will be split between the qualifying residents. Those in residential care who don't get any means-tested benefits get half of the usual payment. You can contact the Winter Fuel Payment helpline on 0800 731 0160.

Warm Home Discount

You will automatically qualify for a £140 discount on your electricity or gas bill if the supplier is part of the Warm Home Discount scheme, and you get the Guarantee Credit part of Pension Credit.

In addition, most utility companies offer assistance with your bills if you're seen as 'vulnerable' – but you have to apply to each individually.

Please call our helpline on 0808 800 0303 to find out more about what grants or loans you may be eligible for.

Help with health costs

You can get help with health costs if you receive income-related Employment and Support Allowance, Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance or the Guarantee Credit of Pension Credit. If you get Universal Credit, Child Credit or Working Tax Credit, eligibility criteria apply.

If you don't receive these benefits but you have a low income, you may still be able to get some help with health costs through the NHS Low Income Scheme.

Help includes free prescriptions, eye tests and vouchers for glasses, free dental treatment and travel costs to hospital.

Help with Council Tax

You may be eligible for Council Tax Reduction (previously called Council Tax Benefit) if you're on a low income or claim certain benefits.

You might get a reduction on your bill under the Disability Reduction scheme if you or someone in your home is 'substantially and permanently disabled' and you have an additional room or extra space in your home to meet your needs.

Council Tax discounts are available if you live alone or if other occupiers are 'disregarded' for Council Tax purposes or if they're on a low income.

Frequently asked questions

Where do I go to claim benefits?

There are different ways of claiming each benefit. To find out how to claim them, see our separate information about that benefit or call our helpline on 0808 800 0303.

If I'm awarded a benefit, how will it be paid?

Usually, all benefits will be paid directly into your bank, building society or credit union account.

What if I don't have a bank account?

If you don't have a bank account or don't want to use your existing account, you'll need to open a new one. You can choose between a standard bank or building society account, or a basic bank account (referred to by some banks as an introductory or starter account).

The Money Advice Service can provide details of the types of starter and current accounts available. Visit www.moneyadviceservice.org.uk or contact them on 0800 138 7777 (Typetalk 18001 0800 915 4622). Lines are open 8am to 6pm, Monday to Friday.

I can't get to the bank or Post Office to collect my payment. Can someone collect it for me?

Many account providers allow you to nominate a helper to access your account on your behalf. You should contact your bank, building society or other account provider for instructions on how to do this.

More information and support

You can call our free confidential helpline for general support and information. Call 0808 800 0303 (calls are free from UK landlines and most mobile networks) or email hello@parkinsons.org.uk.

Our helpline can put you in touch with one of our Parkinson's local advisers, who give one-to-one information and support to anyone affected by Parkinson's. They can also provide links to local groups and services.

Our website parkinsons.org.uk has a lot of information about Parkinson's and everyday life with the condition.

Parkinson's nurses

Parkinson's nurses provide expert advice and support to people with Parkinson's and those who care for them. They can also make contact with other health and social care professionals to make sure your needs are met.

The role of the Parkinson's nurse varies. Each will offer different services, aiming to meet local needs. Some nurses are based in the community, whereas others are based in hospital settings.

Many Parkinson's nurses are independent prescribers. This means they can prescribe and make adjustments to medication, so someone with Parkinson's doesn't always need to see their specialist for changes to or queries about their Parkinson's drugs.

Parkinson's nurses may not be available in every area, but your GP or specialist can give you more details on local services.
